Additional Labour Market Information (L.M.I.)

In order to keep you up to date with the latest labour market information, we will periodically review what is 'making the news' in terms of job markets and trends, both locally and nationally.

It has been widely reported this week that the number of job vacancies nationally is at an all-time 'high', with 1,300,000 vacancies in the period from March to May 2022. Whilst this is good news for job seekers, the news is tempered by the fact that the 'cost of living' (the amount of money required to maintain a certain lifestyle) is also rising significantly. In basic terms, this means that wages are being stretched across the country. Keeping inflation (the rate of price increases over a period of time) under control is a key aim of any government and is a factor in whether they are perceived as 'running the country' well.
