

Key things to remember

- You can only allow your child to miss school if he or she is ill, or if you have advance permission from the school
- Absence requests will only be granted in exceptional circumstances
- You can be fined for taking your child out of school without advance permission from the school

Term-time leave of absence

You should refer to the school absence policy when considering whether to submit an absence request.

Please don't hesitate to contact the school if you have any questions.

A child who is absent one day of school per week misses an equivalent of two years of their school life.

What does the law say?

The government changed the rules on term-time absence in 2013.

Under the new rules, you can only allow your child to miss school if:

- He or she is too ill to go in.
- You've got advance permission from the school.

How do I request permission for an absence?

You must submit a request to the school before you arrange for your child to have time away.

If you wish to take your child out of school during term time, you should submit a formal request to the Head Teacher via the school office. An Application for Leave of Absence form is under Parental Documentation on our Website.

The Head Teacher will then consider whether to give permission for the absence.

When will absence requests be granted?

Permission for absence will only be granted in exceptional circumstances.

The Head Teacher will consider each absence request individually and decide whether to grant the absence.

The Head Teacher will also decide how many days your child can be away from school if the absence is granted.

What if I take my child on an unauthorised absence?

If you take your child out of school without advance permission (except where he or she is unwell), you can be fined or even prosecuted.

This could involve:

- A fixed penalty notice of £60 within 21 days, or £120 within 28 days.
- A parenting order, education supervision order or school attendance order where your child repeatedly misses school without a good reason.

Why is it important?

Missing two weeks of school for a holiday might not seem like very much, but it can have a big effect on your child's education.

For example, if your child misses two weeks of school every year, this adds up to more than two terms over the child's whole time in school.

Making sure your child attends school as much as possible means:

- Your child will have the same education and opportunities as everyone else in the class.
- You won't need to worry about catching up on work, or that your child might fall behind because of missing an important lesson.
- Your child won't miss out on activities at the start and end of term, which are often fun and a chance to develop friendships.

Exceptional circumstances

It is at the school's discretion to decide which circumstances are 'exceptional'.

Examples of circumstances that are not exceptional may include:

- Cheap holidays or holidays that have already been paid for.
- Absence that coincides with important school events such as the start of term or exams.

You can find out more about the rules around term-time absence in the following sources:

School attendance and absence: overview,
GOV.UK

<https://www.gov.uk/school-attendance-absence/overview>

The Education (Pupil Registration) (England) (Amendment) Regulations 2013: regulation 2, legislation.gov.uk

<http://www.legislation.gov.uk/uksi/2013/756/regulation/2/made>